December 2022

Hello from Vienna!

These are exciting times. Just before the year comes to an end, we have selected a new generation of 53 transnational cooperation projects. We will fund them with nearly 100 million EUR in the coming three years to work towards a smarter, greener, better connected and more integrated central Europe.

And there is more good news. If you did not apply with us in the first call, or your proposal was not successful, there will be another chance soon. Our second call will officially open in March next year and we can reveal some initial details already today.

Enjoy the read and happy Christmas holidays!

First call projects with a high share of newcomers

On 15 December, our monitoring committee decided to fund 53 new transnational cooperation projects with a budget of nearly 100 million EUR from the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF). The projects will bring together 560 public and private partners from all programme countries. More than 50 percent of them will be working with us for the first time.

Second call opens on 22 March 2023 to ideas from all priorities

If you have a cooperation idea, we will soon offer you another chance to get funded. We will launch the second call at our programme conference on 22 March and close it eight weeks later on 17 May 2023. The call will be open for project proposals in all funding priorities and specific objectives. The indicative call budget will be 60 million EUR.

We support the development of your application

Finding relevant partners for your project ideas can be tough. Our online community brings together organisations from across central Europe. It facilitates your partner search and presents already existing ideas. It will also host the livestream of our upcoming programme conference on 22 March 2023. More support for potential applicants will become available closer to the official launch of the call.
