#cooperationiscentral

to learn from each other

With our funding we support 138 projects with more than 1 300 partners. Together they create thousands of outputs that all have the potential to make central Europe a smarter, greener, better connected and more social place. Find solutions that work for you in our constantly growing output library.

#cooperationiscentral to start up a new business

Setting up a business and running a successful company is challenging. It requires skills that you do not necessarily acquire at school. CERlecon inspired and trained young entrepreneurs, like the founders of Alpengummi, in so-called PlayParks. They encourage mutual social learning and co-working.

#cooperationiscentral to make renewables an alternative

A greener Europe needs renewable energy. In addition to wind and water as energy sources, central Europe has also shallow geothermal energy. But it is still underused. GeoPLASMA-CE is changing this by equipping eight pilot regions with tools that help them make better use of their shallow geothermal energy.

#cooperationiscentral to optimise public energy consumption

Energy consumption in schools is the second highest expenditure of municipalities. ENERGY@SCHOOL helped to optimise energy consumption in central Europe by training 246 teachers and students to become role models for their classmates.

#cooperationiscentral to stop food waste

Tons of food is wasted every day. Not only in our homes, but also in food production processes, in retail and food service. STREFOWA organised hackathons to come up with digital solutions to address this problem and collected more initiatives in an online platform.

#cooperationiscentral to ensure access to clean groundwater

Central Europe's industrial history has left behind many contaminated brownfields. AMIGA helped to monitor the environmental effects underground. The remediation measures they developed guarantee safe access to water in our cities.

#cooperationiscentral to make urban landscapes greener

Polluted brownfields are a common challenge in many central European cities. Urban areas also often lack green spaces. LUMAT developed an integrated approach to prevent land degradation and to turn contaminated sites into recreational zones.

#cooperationiscentral for a competitive mechatronic industry

There is an innovation gap in central Europe and closing it requires intense cooperation in research and development. NUCLEI helped new business ideas get to the market faster. They developed seven local clusters to foster innovation in advanced manufacturing companies.

#cooperationiscentral for greener logistics in our cities

More and more goods being shipped, greener freight transport is needed. Often it is the last mile that is most emission intense. SULPiTER developed plans for sustainable urban logistics to move goods in a more energy-efficient way.

#cooperationiscentral for a better future

The time has come to take our cooperation forward again. We will soon be searching for new project ideas to be funded, to make sure that also in 2021 we can proudly say: #cooperationiscentral for making our cities and regions better places to live in.
